Greetings from the New Community Partners!

In January, we (Harold Burns, Danny Malec and Mary Novak) began conversations with the Board about the possibility of becoming the new Voluntown Peace Trust (VPT) onsite community partners. After discerning together with the Board, we came to the property in early May. Kevin Jones joined us for one month and provided much needed counsel on land use and maintenance issues.

The months since have been filled with: planting and tending to an experimental organic garden; meeting and learning from our neighbors; significant facilities cleaning and maintenance; coming together with the Board to begin exploring a vision for VPT; and all the nitty gritty details of setting up a new organization. In June, VPT obtained its tax exempt status as a 501(c)(3).

We have also welcomed over 500 new and old friends to “The Farm,” including: local women journeying through the JustFaith program; young folks for summer camp brought by the Hartford Catholic Worker, Sacred Heart Parish (a Puerto Rican Catholic Church in the north end of Hartford) and Hartbeat Ensemble (an activist-based political theatre group); young folks for the 6th Annual Youth Peace Experiment sponsored by the War Resister’s League, Youth Peace Club at Norwich Free Academy and F.R.E.S.H. New London; members of Atlantic Life Community for its biannual retreat; young folks for a training weekend coordinated by American Friends Service Committee and the War Resister’s League; and Maryknoll Sisters who are international peacebuilders. Alliance for Living also worked with us to create a healing weekend for low-income folks living with HIV/AIDS. In these months, we have been sustained by the individual peacebuilders working in Burma, East Timor, Nicaragua, Palestine, Atlanta, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Taos who have come to be with us in the Farmhouse to rest, retreat and lend a hand.

Connecting with the local, regional, national and international peace & justice groups has grounded all of our efforts here and we have begun to work with them in various capacities, including: organizational support work, planning and facilitating meetings and retreats, organizing speaker tours and providing nonviolence workshops. Soon we will begin planning next year’s programs and we welcome your input and suggestions.

History of “The Farm”

When we are out and about, almost everyone—local community folks, those who have lived here in the past, members of peace and justice organizations, etc.—asks if we live at “The Peace Farm” (or, “The Farm”). From documents found on the property and through many conversations, we are learning this property’s rich history and its long tradition as “The Peace Farm.” We hope to share a little bit of that history each time we write to you.

From the Voluntown Historical Society, we understand that the property was owned in 1750 by Dr. John Campbell, the first physician in town; the property stayed in his family for over 100 years. According to one historical-society newsletter, “there is a room behind the chimney in the cellar which several sources report was used as a hiding place for the slaves who came through the underground escape route during the Civil War.”
Putting the Vision into Action

This Summer, we began a collaborative visioning process with members of the Board. This process has been informed and inspired by models such as the Highlander Research and Education Center in Tennessee and Occidental Arts & Ecology Center in California. Through this process, we are working to understand and articulate how this place, consistent with its rich history, can best contribute to transforming today’s violent global reality.

In the midst of this process, we are also beginning to do the work here. The following elements reflect where we have come together in our visioning process and the work we have begun here. We look forward to your input as this vision continues to develop and take shape.

At VPT, we are:

• Supporting movements for justice, sustainability, social change and peace;
• Creating space for people to come together, explore the causes and effects of structures and systems of violence, learn from one another, and work toward just structures, systems, and relationships;
• Providing space for healing, spiritual development and transformation, recognizing that the work for peace begins within the individual;
• Valuing the contributions of people from a wide variety of backgrounds, faith traditions and walks of life;
• Recognizing the spiritual connection between human beings, human communities and the natural environment;
• Prioritizing the needs of marginalized and oppressed communities and natural systems in order to better understand how to move toward integrated, just and sustainable relationships;
• Providing space for critical analysis, dialogue and creative processes where experiences are valued and the world is the classroom; and
• Exploring a life and work practice rooted in the principles and values of nonviolence and committed to nonviolent living, organizing and action.

As we continue the journey, we feel the need to recognize the many wonderful people who have supported and given us encouragement along the way. We were initially invited to consider this project by Liz McAlister, who readily shares her gift of wise counsel and accompaniment with so many. Thank you Liz for encouraging us to say “yes.” We are also deeply grateful to Jackie and Chris Allen-Doucet who took this project from the dreaming stage to reality in the midst of their already full lives at the Hartford Catholic Worker; your commitment is simply stunning. Our heartfelt thanks to the Board of Directors for all of their hard work prior to our arrival, plus their support and constant encouragement since. To Teresa Hougnon for masterfully facilitating VPT through the early phases of our visioning process, we are eternally grateful. And to Barbara McGrath and the folks at the Connecticut Urban Legal Initiative/University of Connecticut School of Law for their expert legal and organizational support, we would be lost without you. The grace and friendship of Joanne Sheehan, Rick Gaumer and the folks at the St. Francis House Community moves us more deeply into our work here and keeps us sane; for this we are so thankful. Finally, chances are we would not still be here in Voluntown were it not for the local support and hospitality we have received. Our deep appreciation goes to the Voluntown community, and in particular, the MacBrides, Gil Grimm, and Peg Price; you have inspired and taught us so much.

POWERDOWN: Options and Actions for a Post-Carbon World
by Richard Heinberg

“[T]he purpose of this book is not to provide yet another cheerful manual on how to save the (human) world (as we know it). But neither is it my goal to helplessly bemoan our inevitable collective fate. Rather, it is to explore realistically our options for the next century. When I say ‘realistically,’ I mean that I take my starting point the belief—arrived at reluctantly after years of reflection and study—that we have already advanced so far in certain directions as to have foreclosed possibilities that we would all prefer were available.”

Popular Education Corner

Three years ago, when the first “Peak Oil” conference was organized in Uppsala Sweden by The Association for the Study of Peak Oil, very few knew what our oil-dependent world was facing. Today, if you conduct an internet search of the phrase “Peak Oil” you will see over 2 million hits. Check out these credible websites and engage five people in dialogue about “Peak Oil:” www.peakoil.net and www.energybulletin.net/news.php. In future publications, we will explore emerging responses to Peak Oil.

The Birgitta Grimm Scholarship for the Arts

This is a newly created scholarship fund for artists from marginalized and oppressed communities to spend time at the Voluntown Peace Trust either as part of a program or on retreat. Birgitta Grimm was a Swedish born artist & poet who died of cancer in March 2005 in Voluntown. Birgitta moved to New England at 18 and was the late wife of our dear neighbor Gil Grimm. She was also the mother of three children including our friend Cecilia Grimm, a visual and trapeze artist now living in New York City. If you would like to donate to this scholarship, see page 3.
Community Partner Bios

Harold Burns was born and raised in Baltimore, Maryland and has been part of the peace & justice community since he was quite small. He attended Reed College in Portland, Oregon where he studied Contemporary Dance and Religion. Since graduating from Reed, Harold has worked for Planned Parenthood, been an election observer in El Salvador, and worked for Migrant Head Start. Most recently Harold worked with Newborn Holistic Ministries in Baltimore.

Danny Malec is from Atlanta, Georgia where he trained as an Industrial Engineer and worked as a strategic management consultant for over two years. After leaving the business world, Danny served for three years with Jesuit Volunteers International in Managua, Nicaragua. There, he worked at Project Generating Life and helped start an outreach program for drug addicted youth. After leaving Nicaragua, Danny continued working with Latino youth in Atlanta, Georgia and during that time became active with the Open Door Community, participating in the community’s various works of mercy and resistance to war and empire. Danny recently completed a masters program in Conflict Transformation and Peacebuilding at Eastern Mennonite University (EMU) where he focused on restorative justice and youth violence prevention.

Mary Novak practiced law in California for over 15 years in the areas of environmental, water, energy, land use, death penalty, employment and workplace injury law. As a Supervising Attorney for the East San Jose Community Law Center, Mary was Clinical Faculty at Santa Clara University (SCU) Law School. Most recently, Mary was Program Director for Faculty Development at SCU, working with faculty on community-based learning and Jesuit education pedagogy. Mary is a trained spiritual director, having done graduate study in theology and ministry, and is an experienced facilitator and mediator for groups working for social change. Mary lived and worked at Jonah House in Baltimore, Maryland during much of 2004.

Founding Donors Needed

We owe our gratitude to the committed and generous people who came together last year to raise the down-payment for the purchase of this property. Generous founding donors have also made yearly financial commitments so that VPT can service the mortgage debt. With twelve more founding donors, the mortgage will be covered, allowing VPT’s resources to be devoted to programming, operations, and facilities repair and maintenance. Please consider becoming a founding donor.

The Voluntown Peace Trust is a non-profit center for social change and sustainable living. For nearly 50 years, the 57-acre property in Voluntown, Connecticut has been a place for equity-based community economics and nonviolent living, organizing and action. Grounded in this history, VPT brings together individuals and groups that are developing constructive alternatives to the violence of our age.

Please contact us if you would like to tour the property, are interested in rental opportunities, or would like to volunteer.

For over a decade, Hartford Catholic Worker’s Summer Camp has been held here in Voluntown; VPT was pleased to welcome them again this year. In July and August, over 60 young folks from North Hartford spent time fishing, swimming and exploring community together.
